Purpose

University of Holy Cross (UHC) and Delgado Community College (DCC) have agreed to enter into an articulation agreement that allows students to complete the Associate of Applied Science (AAS) degree in Radiologic Technology (Rad Tech) at DCC and transfer credit hours earned toward completion of the Bachelor of Science in Health Sciences Curriculum for Radiologic Technologists.

This partnership is mutually beneficial to both institutions for several reasons. After earning the Associate of Applied Science degree in Rad Tech at DCC, students will have the opportunity to transfer those credits toward completion of a Bachelor's degree in Health Sciences, thereby advancing their careers. UHC will have the opportunity to admit students with a strong foundational background into a program in its Health Sciences Department.

Both institutions serve constituency needs and are responsive, student - oriented institutions that prepare the students to become productive members of society as well as promote the academic development and improvement in the quality of life of citizens in their regions. This articulation agreement promotes the mission, vision and core values of both institutions.

UHC Mission Statement

DCC accepts responsibility, as does UHC, for ensuring that faculty qualifications are in accordance with SACS-COC standards.

DCC students who successfully complete the courses listed in this agreement, have earned the DCC AAS – Rad Tech degree, and who have earned ARRT (American Registry of Radiologic Technologists) credentials, are permitted to transfer them to University of Holy Cross (UHC) toward the Bachelor of Science in Health Sciences Curriculum for Radiologic Technologists degree. The total number of credit hours required to complete this bachelor's degree is 120 semester hours. DCC AAS – Rad Tech graduates can transfer 76 hours (59 hours specified professional training program credit hours plus 17 additional hours credit for specified prerequisites) from the DCC AAS – Rad Tech degree for credit from UHC.
